PLANTATION LIFE REVIVED IN SOUTH BY NEW ACTIVITY

Old Estates Deserted After War Between the States Are Put Back Under Cultivation

SOME ARE MADE GAME PRESERVES

Old Mansions Are Transformed Into Hunting Lodges for Clubs of Wealthy Northerners

SONS BUY BACK FAMILY HOMES

Many Family Estates Lost After the Struggle Come Back to Former Line

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 17.—The south is going back to its plantations. Lands that have lain fallow for a generation are being tilled again and long-deserted mansions repaired and opened, sometimes as permanent homes, oftener as country places and shooting lodges. Wide fireplaces blaze again on autumn evenings; halls that have been silent for fifty years are filled with music and voices; swamps and pine forests echo the horns of hunting parties and the trumpeting bay of hounds.

Many Deserted

There is something peculiarly appealing about the rehabilitation of these old mansions, some of which have stood through the whole American story since colonial days, and have sheltered the soldiers of three American wars. After Lee's surrender, a variety of conditions forced the southerners to leave their plantations on the coastal plains. The rice industry could not stand the competition from the west. Sea Island cotton, which had long ruled the market, dropped in price. There was no money in the south to begin agriculture on new lines. The people left their lands and crowded to the cities. Now they have found prosperity again, and they are going back.

The movement is not primarily a sentimental one, by any means. A few weeks ago three brothers here bought back ten thousand acres, which had belonged to their family before the war. They are going in for scientific agriculture. Companies have been formed to reclaim the rice fields. There are two experts from the national department of agriculture in town now to advise some Charleston men on such a project. They believe that by strengthening the old dikes and using steam pumps, these rich alluvial lands can be placed under cultivation again. Other lands are being divided into small tracts and colonized.

Fine Game Preserves

Most unique is the utilization of these old plantations as hunting preserves. Nearly all of them contain great areas of swamp and woodland and these are alive with game. Deer, wild turkey, foxes, wild fowl and partridges are abundant within a few miles of Charleston. There is probably not another city of its size in the United States that commands finer hunting. Now those estates which combine excellent game covers with comfortable mansions are being purchased by clubs. The old homes make excellent hunting lodges. Men from as far north as Boston and as far west as St. Paul gather here in November, often bringing their families with them and staying the whole season. Some of the clubs have thirty or forty members, and a force of game keepers. The initiation fee is usually five to ten thousand dollars, and the annual dues run from seven hundred to a thousand. There are many smaller clubs, and some large tracts of land, are kept by individuals as hunting grounds.

This conversion of plantations into shooting preserves has many advantages. It keeps up and improves these historical homes, brings no inconsiderable amount of money to the south, and saves the game. For all of the clubs have the most strict of game laws and rigorously suppress poaching.

Perhaps the most famous of the old estates which are thus being re-

TOPEKA, Kas., March 21.—With Dave Mulvane withdrawn from the race for the republican national committeeman from Kansas, throwing his strength to Fred Stanley of Wichita, the state convention today promised to pass off quietly.

Four delegates at large to the national convention will be named.

BRITISH DESTROYERS ENGAGE GERMANS WHO ESCAPE TO ZEEBRUGGE

LONDON, March 21.—Four British destroyers engaged three German destroyers off the Belgian coast yesterday, the admiralty announced this afternoon. Two enemy boats were hit by shells from the British destroyers, the admiralty stated. Four British sailors were wounded.

The Germans escaped into the naval base at Zeebrugge, Belgium, after a running fight, the admiralty announced.

The clash between the speedy, light vessels, is the first engagement between British and German warcraft in many weeks. The German destroyers are believed to have emerged either from the German base at Zebrugge, Belgium, or to have made a dash along the Dutch coast from Heligoland, hugging the shore line until they encountered the British patrol ships.

Recent weather conditions in the North sea and along the Belgian coast have been favorable to just such a dash by German warcraft. Incoming skippers have reported heavy mists overhanging the channel and the north sea for several days.

The German admiralty, in an official statement telegraphed here this afternoon, reported that German gunners made several direct attacks on the British destroyers in the engagement. The British destroyers fled, according to the German statement.

LIZARDS AND RATS ADD TO HORROR OF REFUGEE IN ABANDONED SHAFT

EL PASO, Texas, March 21.—On the verge of a nervous breakdown, Mrs. Wallace Rogers of Detroit, Mich., the wife of a mine owner, today hugged her baby tightly in her arms and re-told the story of their two day refuge in an abandoned copper mine shaft in the Cananea district while Villista bandits ravaged the countryside and sought to slay all Americans. Rats, bats and underground lizards added terrors to the black depths of the abandoned shaft, Mrs. Rogers said.

Mrs. Rogers said the Mexicans became infuriated at the sight of the American flag and respected only the British flag. Many Americans, she asserted, were compelled at times to seek protection under the folds of the British union jack.

Vincenzo Visconti, an Italian, has wired the Italian embassy at Washington, telling of the murder of his brother Farico Visconti by bandits near Santa Rosalia, Chihuahua, on March 14, and demanding that the embassy protest to the state department.

A number of other local Italians were drawing a protest to be forwarded to the embassy with a request that it be formally sent to Secretary Lansing.

MILLION SERBS DEAD FROM THE SWORD AND DISEASE AND FAMINE

BY HENRY WOOD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ROME, March 21.—Serbia has lost nearly 1,000,000 of her 5,000,000 people through death by the sword, by starvation, or in the recent typhus epidemic, thePrince Regent Alexander informed the United Press today.

The remaining 4,000,000 face starvation. It is to save them from the greatest calamity in history that Prince Alexander, the Prime Minister Patchitch and the foreign minister, Jovanovitch, have begun a tour of allied capitals. They hope to secure military action in the Balkans that will insure the restoration of their native country.

Prince Alexander realized, he said, that only by keeping intact Serbia's fighting forces could he hope to redeem his country from its enemies. For this reason everything else was abandoned during the disastrous retreat through Albania.

The aged King Peter, suffering intensely from the hardships of the retreat to the mountains, left his armed forces in command of his son. Prince Alexander refused to leave the Albania cost until the last Serbian soldier had been transported to Corfu, or elsewhere.

VILLA WOULD FOUND KU KLUX KLAN AGAINST CONTROLLING DE FACTOS

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 21.—Thousands of Mexican peons are being urged by Villistas to organize a secret band similar to the Ku Klux Klan of reconstruction days, it was reported here today by Carranzista agents. Villa plans to lay low, hidden by friendly peons, until the clamor for his life has abated, it was said, and then intends to sound the signal for a sudden uprising of the Mexican laboring classes against Carranza.

Officers of the United States army also took cognizance of the latest trend of Villa's activity, when they learned that inflammatory Villista pamphlets were circulated in the Mexican settlements on this side of the border.

COLORED CAVALRY IMPATIENT TO GET ON VILLA'S TRAIL

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 21.—"God pity poor Villa if the Seventh and Tenth ever get within sight of him," heartily exclaimed an officer at Camp Douglas today.

When Douglas was in danger and Villista bullets rained in the city during the bandit's attack on Agua Prieta, the two American cavalry regiments "stood by" Douglas and the warmest feeling prevails here for the squadron.

Members of the Tenth, colored, frequently expressed a desire to go after "dat Villa man". The Tenth is now reported to be in the vanguard of General Pershing's column. A number of troopers in both regiments have fallen victims to Villa snipers in the fighting around Agua Prieta. The squadron is expected by officers here to give a good account of itself when it catches up with Villa's band.

Disturbing reports of the concentration of large Carranza forces within striking distance of the border hereabouts are believed to be exaggerations. Officials of the de facto government make the most emphatic declarations of co-operation.

Registration Day Sees Many Games "Customers" Few

Numerous card games were in progress in all the election booths of the city today. "Rummy" was filling in the long dalays between "customers." Today is registration day, and registration was conspicuously slow.

La Crosse people are slow to move, was the interpretation placed on the lack of interest in today's event. The only ones required to register are those who have moved into wards since the last election.

At the city hall less than a dozen had registered at noon.

RUSS LAY SIEGE TO TURK SEAPORT

ROME, March 21—Russian troops have arirved outside the Turkish Black sea port of Trebizond and are laying siege to the city, according to advices received here today. A large force of Turks is defending Trebizond.

PETROGRAD, March 21.—Russian forces entered the Persian city of Ispahan Sunday, according to Teheran dispatches today.

RUSSIANS VICTORS IN HEAVY FIGHTING ON EASTERN FRONT

Russians Gain Bridgehead and Trenches Which the Teutons Defended for Six Months

SCENE OF DESPERATE FIGHT

Slavs Blast Breach Three Hundred Feet Wide and Commander Is Forced to Evacuate

LONDON, March 21.—Distinct Russian victories at both ends of the 800 mile eastern battle front this afternoon overshadowed the fighting around Verdun, where the Germans have made further advances.

The battering of heavy Russian guns against Von Hindenburg's front in the north has forced the Germans to withdraw from a salient south of Narocz lake. The German war office admitted the retirement in an official statement this afternoon, declaring a retreat was necessary to avoid annihilation of German troops by the encircling fire of the Slavs.

Kuropatkin Leads Army

General Kuropatkin, Russian commander-in-chief in the Japanese war, commanded the army that forced the German retirement..

A few hours earlier come admission from the Austrian war office of an important Russian victory in southeastern Galicia, thirty-eight miles northeast of Czernowitz. The strongly fortified Uscieczbo bridgehead position and Austrian bulwark through six months of heavy fighting, was surrendered to the Russians after a desperate seven hours artillery and infantry battle.

Capture of the bridgehead position renders precarious the position of remaining Austrian forces on the north bank of the Dniester, and forecasts the beginning of a new Russian campaign against Bukowina. In view of the rumored entrance of Rumania into the war, this development is regarded as highly significant.

It is considered certain here that the power of the new Russian offensive will force the withdrawal of German troops from the western front and possibly end the Verdun offensive.

BERLIN, March 21. — Austrian troops have evacuated the Uscieczvo bridgehead and trenches northwest of Czernowitz after defending the positions for six months against the Russian attacks, the Austrian war office admitted in a statement telegraphed here today.

The position had been battered into a heap of ruins by heavy pounding

"HAPPY" GREEN TO JAIL TO BEGIN 60 DAY STRETCH

Bail Is Not Furnished and Appeal Is Not Taken, so Sheriff Takes Him to County Castle

FRIENDS DO NOT FORGET HIM

Goes toBastile Loaded Down with Pie and Cake as Well as the "Makings"

Silas "Happy" Green, legless automobile driver of Hokah, whose last escapade brought him a fine of $300 and a county jail term of sixty days, began serving his sentence yesterday.

Sheriff George J. Ritter kept the legless youth in the hold-over cell at the court house until yesterday afternoon. It was rumored about the building that "Happy" was going to raise the bail money required to allow him freedom while his attorneys took the case to a higher court. Nothing was done however.

Friends gathered about "Happy" in the court house cell yesterday afternoon. Each had a gift. One brought a big custard pie; another a package of "makings" and others cakes and edibles which they knew "Happy" liked. He seemed to care little about the sentence.

As the curious looked into his cell jokingly told them he intended to charge an admission fee to see him.

OFFENSIVE SHIFTS TO THE NORTHWEST NUTCRACKER TRIED

Berlin Claims Capture of French Positions and the Taking of 2,532 Prisoners

WOULD FORCE RETIREMENT

Plan Evidently Is to Make French Leave Villages and Seek Refuge in the Forts

BERLIN, March 21.—Capture of French positions ten miles northwest of Verdun, northeast of Avocourt, was announced by the war office this afternoon. The Germans took 2,532 prisoners and much booty, it was stated.

French counter attacks in the region of Avocourt were repulsed, the war office stated. East of the Meuse, on the northern front of Verdun, the situation is unchanged.

LONDON, March 21.—The crown prince has not abandoned the Verdun offensive. By a flanking attack from the extreme west, he is now trying to force the abandonment of French positions on the northwest front of Verdu, according to Paris dispatches today. Berlin reported the capture of positions northeast of Avocourt and of 2,532 prisoners and considerable booty.

The German offensive west of Malancourt yesterday followed the failure of frontal attacks to break the French front west of the Meuse. The crown prince is now applying the familiar "nut-cracker" strategy on the narrow sectorf ten miles northwest of the citadel.

The German thrust near Malancourt, eight miles west of the Meuse, was accompanied by an advance of German troops from Regneville, along the river bank.

The plan evidently was to squeeze the French out of the village of Cumieres and Chattancourt, behind Dead Man hill and force a retirement on the northwestern forts of Verdun.

The German attacks around Malancourt met with some success, dispatches from Paris admitted today.

The attempt to break the eastern jaw of the "nut-cracker" on the bank of the Meuse, met with a failure. A German force that moved southward from Regneville, was caught in the floode lowlands by a hot fire from the French early on the east bank of the Meuse and driven back with serious losses.

Paris Admits Reverses

PARIS, March 21. — German troops have made further gains in their new offensive movement on the west bank of the Meuse, the French war office admitted this afternoon.

In a renewal of the heavy assaults against the Abancourt-Malancourt line last night, the Teutons occupied the southeastern part of the Malancourt wood, also known as Avaucourt wood.

The Germans, however, sustained heavy losses in the attack, the war office reported.

The funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the residence in Dresbach, and at 2 o'clock from the Methodist church, Rev. Hawley will officiate. BANDIT FORCES BEATEN BUT VILLA IS THOUGHT TO HAVE MADE GETAWAY

TO GIVE PRESIDENT POWER TO CALL OUT MEN IN EMERGENCY

Kahn Amendment Accepted by House Would Enable Executive to Increase Without Sanction

ONE YEAR AMENDMENT KILLED

Measure to Increase Reserves by Creating One Year Enlistments Is Voted Down

WASHINGTON, March 21.—A sensational scene was enacted on the senate floor this afternoon when Senator James Reed of Missouri charged that Senator Oliver, one of the principal opponents of the Tillman armor plate bill, is the owner of 1,000 shares of stock in the United States Steel company, head of the armor monoply.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—An amendment giving the president a free hand to call out regular army reserves in case of war or threatened hostilities, was made by the house today to the Hay army reorganization bill. Its effect would be to increase the army by sixty thousand at a stroke of the president's pen without awaiting action by congress.

The amendment was the most important change yet made to the house bill, but offered by Representative Kahn, California, it was accepted by Chairman Hay and the house without debate.

Kahn offered another amendment to create more reserves in the regular army by permitting a discretionary one year enlistment. Many members scored the present long term and small pay enlistments. Kahn's proposed amendment would allow men to leave the army after one or two years and remain in reserve for the rest of the seven years enlistment period.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon announced his support of the Hay bill.

On the closest vote since the bill was taken up the Kahn short term enlistment amendment was defeated 113 to 108. It was on almost solid party lines, the democrats voting in the negative.

The house also rejected an amendment by Representative Towner to have two regiments of infantry in Porto Rico instead of one.

Expect Defense Bills' Passage

Passage before adjournment today of two preparedness bills, the Hay army reorganization measure in the house and the Tillman $11,000,000 government armor plate project in the senate, was the hope of congress leaders.

A final vote on the armor plate bill late this afternoon was certain. Voting on amendments, by agreement, was to begin at 4 o'clock. There was more doubt about final house action on the Hay bill coming today. There was a bare chance that the bill could be completed, but it was more probable that the vote would go over until Thursday, as the house will lay aside the bill temporarily tomorrow.

Senator Oliver gave the lie direct to those who have accused the armor makers of selling more cheaply to foreign governments than to the United States. Only a few sales of samples at lower than cost price had been made, he said, with the idea of getting more trade.

DE FACTOS ENGAGE VILLISTAS TO SOUTH OF CASAS GRANDES

"Only Matter of Hours" Says Funston Commenting on Dispatches of Battle

AMERICANS RUSH TO SCENE

Dodds Cavalry Hurries to Join Carranzistas in Running Fight with Villa Men

PERSHING EXPRESSES HOPE

Bandit Thought Advancing in Path of Oncoming American Columns Pursued by Carranzistas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 21.—General Funston announced this afternoon he had asked the war department to give him additional troops to adequately protect General Pershing's "dangerously thin" line of communication. He refused to make public the number requested, preferring to have that information come from Washington.

The question is unofficially raised whether General Funston's request does not spring from the presence of Carranzistas between Pershing's column and the border.

"Few Hours May Tell"

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 21.—"The next few hours may tell the story."

This was General Funston's curt comment today on dispatches relating Villa's clash with Carranza troops coming north from Chihuahua, the bandit's defeat and subsequent flight north directly toward three southbound American cavalry columns. With these detachments of United States soldiers headed for Lake Babicora, El Valle and Carmen, any effort on Villa's part to escape to the north seems effectually spiked.

A hard night ride brought the American soldiers close to their quarry today. While army headquarters has no definite word that the commander of the Carranza column is formally co-operating with the American general, Pershing, through his own scouts, evidently is being kept advised of the former's movements.

"On the map, it looks like Villa might be in hot water," remarked General Funston. "But we must not forget he still has a free movement over a big lot of country and that he knows every trail and cowpath in those mountains."

According to the best information at army headquarters, Villa will make every effort to slip past the southwest corner of Lake Babicora, and dash for the Sierra Madre mountains, in the region about Guerrero.

EL PASO, March 21.—Advices to his Columbus headquarters today were that the Carranza troops yesterday administered a severe defeat to Villa's forces. Villa was reported in Pershing's radio messages to have retreated into the Santa Clara mountains.

Villa Escaped is Belief

EL PASO, Texas, March 21.—That the wily Villa has escaped the pursuing American and Carranza columns was believed here today.

According to a message received by General Gavira, Carranza commandant at Juarez, Villa late yesterday afternoon was met and defeated by a column of Carranza cavalry under Colonel Gano at Namiquipa in the Guerrero district, eighty miles southeast of Casas Grandes, and west of Chihuahua and is thought to have eluded his pursuers. Since the fight no word has come from the battlefield. The American forces closing

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

HER IRISHMAN

Clara Jane fairly staggered into the room—she was so tired. Even her hat looked tired and the little stick-up in front, once so brave and starchy, had a listless droop.

Clara Jane's spirits were fast flagging. Back in Starberry much praised genius had risen as with a leaven and run over. Realizing that she must have room to spread and that millinery for delvers' wives was no longer the limit of her horizon, she had removed herself from her hampering environment to the city.

Off came the hat with a jerk. The poor little stick-up got a vicious tug and was flung across the room and out of the window. "I hate hats! I've sorted feathers today till I'm full of them. I eat them, breathe them, ugh—I can't even look at a bird. And I'm hungry!"

The contents of several paper bags did not look inviting—crackers in one, stale rolls in another and some old apples with wrinkles. She sighed. "I wish I had some of mother's waffles and chicken, and some corn pudding and caramel sweet potatoes and chocolate cake and custard pie and——"

"Some griddle cakes and country sausage and apple dumplings and—" The masculine voice stopped. Clara Jane turned and stared open-mouthed at the unexpected person in the doorway. He evidently encouraged confidence, for she answered sadly: "I've nothing left to remind me of home but my name. I hang on to every inch of it."

"But you can't eat that," said the man. "It's awful to be hungry!"

"Yes! Then one knows what good things really are. How did you get here? You don't belong, do you? I thought I knew every one in the house. I must have left my door open."

"You did. This came out of the window and landed in my left eye. I looked up and saw no one. I rang the bell. A fat woman answered it. I handed this in. She said instantly: 'It's Miss Amherst's. You take it up; you're younger 'n me and not so big.' So I brought it up. I arrived. I'm here. Behold your green feather. Thank me and let me depart."

"For goodness sake, don't ask thanks for that. I hate it. I threw it out. I never want to see a feather. I work with them all day. Please return it to the street! I'd throw it in the fire, but feathers smell so when they burn and Miss Crex will think I'm cooking. We're not allowed to cook in our rooms."

"I would if I were not Irish. But I can't see green go down." He pulled the feather through his buttonhole. "And now I must go. But, say, will you do something for me, if it's not asking too much?"

"Y—yes, I suppose so!" His eyes were so blue and honest! "What is it?"

"I'm going to a party and my only pair of gloves need mending. Do you think you could put in a stitch?"

"Yes, indeed! I'll be glad to."

"Then I'll be going by in fifteen minutes. I can't come up. Have you anything you can let down?"

"Out of the window, you mean?"

"Yes."

"I'll tie a string to my hat."

"Good!"

"But when they are done, what will you do?"

"When they're done! Oh! I'll just whistle."

"Then, good night. If you stand there any longer, Miss Crex will come up and send you down. She's particular about what we do."

"All right. Don't forget the hat."

Fifteen minutes later Clara Jane drew up the hat, basket-like, from the depths of the street.

"It's heavy. I wonder if he's brought his darning and weekly wash."

Bump! The hat arrived containing a large paper parcel that smelled delicious when opened.

Saurages, a soft-shelled crab, a baked potato, hot rolls, butter, marmalade and cake from a nearby restaurant.

Clara Jane stood awhile and debated. "The proper thing for me to do is to throw it into the street. I don't know his name and he's very presuming. But how can I when I'm hungry enough to eat the heels off my slippers, and have only car fare for morning? Tomorrow's pay day, think goodness! "I'll have to eat."

So she did—even the potato skin. Then she waited for the whistle, all evening, but none came and she was glad of it after all. She was beginning to like her Irishman.

Clara Jane awoke with the birds, country fashion, put an old buckle on her hat where the feather thing had been and drank some coffee made over the gas jet. Then she went to work.

Her particular department of the big store was feathers. "I hate to go in," she protested as she tied on her apron.. "I wonder if they won't give me roses and flowers instead. That's the floor above and it would be a change of scene as well as occupation. If I ever get into the trimming department I'll know the millennium has come!"

She was talking aloud and didn't know it. It come from loneliness.

"I think it's here," said a voice suspiciously like the Irishman's.

Clara Jane turned and confirmed the suspicion. "Where are the gloves I was to mend?"

His face fell. "I forget all about them."

"You told a story!"

"A downright black lie. It's terrible sorry I am."

"You don't look it. Anyway you are forgiven."

"Thank heaven!"

"The crab was fine."

"Yes'm!"

"And the sausages were better!"

"Yes'm!"

"Don't say that again. And the potatoes and rolls and all the rest of the stuff were delicious! It saved my life." She bent her arm. "I'm as strong as Samson this morning. I could pluck an ostrich, much as I hate feathers."

"I came to see about it."

"About what?"

"Giving you another position. This is my store. Miss-Lady-From-the-Country-Who-Needs-All-Her-Name."

"My name is Clara Jane Amherst. I suppose you are Mr. Terry if you own the store."

"You don't seem much impressed!"

"I'm not. I hate the old place. Anyway I'd rather work with the flowers."

"Won't anything else do?"

"Well, I can't starve, so I can't leave. If you order me to the cellar to shovel coal I'll have to go."

"Worse than that. I'm going to order you out of the store and into my house, if you'll go. I never wanted a wife until yesterday and she introduced herself by throwing things at me. That's the spirit I like. Suits my Irish blood. What do you say, mavourneen—will you come?"

"Well, you are direct. I—I don't——"

"That's no way to begin. Try it again."

"Well—maybe I——"

"That's better. Go on."

"Perhaps I will."

"Fine. When do you want to be fired?"

SUGAR UP QUARTER CENT IN A WEEK

NEW YORK, March 21.—Sugar reached 6¾ cents a pound in the New York retail market today as against 6½ cents a week ago. Before the summer is over it may go to eight cents, sugar men say. They assign the increase to the entry of Italy into the sugar market last week and to the summer demand rather than to the congressional action repealing the clause which was to have made sugar free May 1.

"The congressional action was a stiffener to the market," said one broker, "but the trade conditions are actually responsible for the price rise."

COUNTRY AGAINST A LARGE ARMY

The American people may not know what is best for them, but they know what they want. Of late years congressmen have learned that it is wise for politicians to know what their constituents want, and it is frequently in evidence that they are guided pretty closely by that knowledge.

The heavy vote in the house of representatives against a standing army of even 220,000 men, may be taken as pretty sure evidence that a majority of the people of the United States are opposed to anything approximating a large standing army. The outcome, largely presaged by the vote yesterday, probably will turn the bona fide defense faction to a larger consideration of the militia.

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION"

To whatever extent we are able to "see ourselves as ithers see us," we naturally try to make the spectacle passing fair to the "ithers," but perhaps we are assuming when we imagine ourselves secluded from the sight of "ithers."

A group of new babies had been assembled in a local kindergarten class—all kinds and conditions from all sorts of environments.

"In twenty-four hours I can tell you almost anything you want to know about the kind of home each one of these children live in, about the character and habits of the parents," said the head kindergarten teacher.

"Help, help!"

Can we have no privacy? Must the grease spots in the table linen and the dust on the family Bible become public property? Can't mother leave the sweepings under the bed or dad celebrate his regular Saturday night jag without baby peddling it over town? What a mess this child-reading makes, to be sure! Just let the other women get the kindergarten teacher's system and the bridge clubs and sewing circles will have "Town Topics" backed off the board. "I see by the papers," they used to say, and since newspapers are polite what they didn't see was considerable. Imagine, instead: "I see by little Mary Jones that Mrs. Jones found a letter from Mrs. Dean in her husband's pocket when she was looking for change." For mercy's sake, send for the baby and have her deleted!

There's a lot of truth in what the kindergarten teacher said, and perhaps knowledge of it may shake up some households by touching that cheap pride which makes much of appearances, but the truly important point is that the kindergarten teacher's ability to know the family through the babies should appeal to us from the reverse side.

If one can tell the character of a household by watching a three-year-old tot, what an all-important influence the household has had upon the tot! The child reflects the household. The household is making the child that is to become the woman and the mother. At the age of three, with many impressionable years to come, the little one has become what the home is.

Heredity and environment make the human being. Heredity we may not control, but we can control environment. There is no greater responsibility than that of the home, for "the sins of the parents shall be visited upon the children." It may not be written, but in the compensating scheme of creation, somewhere, some day, the sins of the children will be visited upon the parents to whatever extent the parents contributed to them.

SENATE THE JUDGE OF OWN MEMBERSHIP

After sending the late Ole Olsen to jail more than one hundred times for being drunk, Judge John Brindley decided to try fright as a cure for delinquency. In his most serious voice the court addressed the sheriff:

"Duncan, we've sent Ole to jail once a week for years and it seems to do no good. We've got to be more severe. What do you say if we send him to the legislature?"

Ole fell upon his knees and pleaded for mercy.

Down in Indiana they seem to have a similar idea. They indicted Taggart and seem to have contemplated sending him to the penitentiary for an alleged election conspiracy. But evidently the Hoosiers concluded the penalty was inadequate, so they've acquitted Taggart and sent him to the United States senate. Perhaps Taggart will give Washington a first class gambling house and carry his senate job as a side-line.

"ON CHRIST THE SOLID ROCK"

In the Woman's Page today appears an editorial from The Christian Advocate, commenting upon the work done by the Young Women's Christian association for the women employes of the San Francisco exposition. One should read this editorial for it shows what concrete foundation underlies the surface activities of the association. We, in La Crosse, with the still unsolved problem of the local "Y. W." before us, have need of the information.

"OH, THE NOBLE DUKE OF YORK"

Not in all things has Europe excelled our American war machine. In dreadnaughts and submarines, in field artillery and armed forces, granted. But in one department we have them on the hip—behold! our sphinx-like censorship. Verily, a news dispatch from the San Antonio war office is a mess of disjunctive verbs and prepositions the masterful meaninglessness of which challenges admiration. For the great, mysterious silence they've got to give it to us. We've a notion that for years after the artistic quietus has been applied to Pancho Villa deleted dispatches will still inform us that, "Gen. ...'s column may have joined Col. ...'s cavalry somewhere south of ....."

THE TRIBUNE'S DAILY TRAVELETTE
(By Niksah)

In Trinidad, nature seems determined to give man the greatest possible bounty in the smallest possible space. The little island abounds in every tropic beauty, is rich in myriad forms of vegetable and animal life, has a lake of asphalt, big enough to pave all the streets of a continent, that is continually renewed from an apparently inexhaustible supply in the mysterious center of the earth, and as though that was not enough to satisfy any island, now Trinidad has struck oil.

At first glance from the in-coming steamer, Trinidad does not look like an island at all. It seems to be a part of the South American mainland that lies only a few miles to the westward. Its bold cliffs rear up from the water-side until it seems that their lower slopes must certainly make connection with Venezuela. But unfortunately for Venezuela, they do not, and instead of helping to fill the treasury of a South American republic, Trinidad belongs to the British Empire.

Port of Spain, the capital, shows the effect of British influence in its clean modern streets. You hear Spanish more frequently than English, however; and you see people from many countries farther off than England or Spain. The labor problem has forced Trinidad to import workers from wherever she could find them. The Hindoo seems to have solved the problem, and this brown people that Canada turns back from her shores are welcomed here in the tropics—as long as they do not come too fast for comfort.

The most famous sight in the island is the great Pitch Lake. It is rather disappointing to look at. Just a flat stretch of what seems to be dark earth, dotted here and there with tufts of discouraged yellow grass. Gangs of laborers are scattered over the open surface cutting that earth into irregular blocks, and loading it into little cars that run on crazy tracks. A continual stream of it runs over the tracks down to the shore and into the black empty holds of waiting vessels. As you watch, your nose and eyes gradually tell you that this earth is asphalt. The whole ground beneath your feet is asphalt. Out in the center of the open, liquid asphalt bubbles up, slowly and ceaselessly from the depths. It is not picturesque, it is far from beautiful, but it is a striking hint of the vast forces within this planet, on whose crust we live and have our being.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Longfellow

The winds have talked with him confidingly;
The trees have whispered to him, and the night
Hath held him gently as a mother might,
And taught him all sad tones of melody;
The mountains have bowed to him; and the sea
In clamorous waves and murmurs exquite
Hath told him all her sorrow and delight—
Her legends fair—her darkest mystery.
His verse blooms like a flower, night and day;
Bees cluster round his rhymes; and twitterings
Of lark and swallow, in an endless May,
Are mingling with the tender songs he sings.
Nor shall he cease to sing—in every lay
O Nature's voice he sings—and will alway. —J. W. Riley.

The Searchlight
(Latest News of Science Education Invention)

America is the first country to establish a monument to antediluvian animals. President Wilson did this in setting aside an eighty acre park near Vernal, Utah, which contains hundreds of skeletons of these prehistoric monsters embedded in solid rock. This monument will not be especially attractive to the public for most of the bones are so well covered with rock as to require a scientific eye to see them. It is to be held rather as a mine of fossils for the various museums of the country. The deposits were discovered by explorers under the auspices of the Carnegie Museum of Pittsburgh. Among the skeletons already noted there is an almost perfect one of the largest brontosaurus known to science—an animal eighty feet long and nearly twenty feet high which in life probably weighed as much as a dozen of the largest elephants now in existence.

When he came to the Great Man's room, he could naraly drag his feet across the threshold and the sight of Tredeker's broad back gave him the ague. The sight of a girl facing the president shocked him into momentary life however, and he was warm and nervous instead of cold and inert when he recognized her as the young woman who had so nearly run him down a week ago. He did not stop to ask himself what she was doing in this office, nor to reflect on her presence in any way. In his embarrassment at intruding prematurely, he thought only of escape and was hurriedly backing out when Tredeker, attracted by the girl's gaze, turned about and saw him.

"Come in, MacDonald," he said. "I've been expecting you. This is my daughter. Alice, this is Mr. MacDonald, one of our young men. 'Scuse me a moment while I go out and tell Sturgis I won't need him. I'll drive you home myself, Alice."

He went out and Henry, fidgeting one foot and then on the other, felt that he was making a fool of himself. He was acutely conscious of several facts, the chief one being that though in all that is commonly considered as forming beauty this daughter of the Great Man could not equal Marcella Parker, yet her whole being and presence was immeasurably superior to that of the young lady typist. Henry felt that same qualm of disillusion for the other girl as he had experienced once before in the presence of this young woman. He was ashamed of himself for admiring the other. He did not express the thought nor consciously form it, but it took root in his mind that Marcella compared with Miss Tredecker much as a skilfully executed artificial rose might compare with a freshly plucked violet. There was nothing made up about Miss Tredeker, or if there was, it apt nature too closely for his dull senses to grasp the deceit.

"Won't you sit down, Mr. MacDonald?" said Miss Tredeker pleasantly. Her voice had the peculiar effect of dissipating a great deal of Henry's embarrassment, and he sat down with less of awkwardness than he usually displayed. She looked at him with shy interest. He was unconscious of the fact, but he had a face that was keen and bright to an amazing degree and eyes that were reflections of the brilliancy of mind that lay behind them. They were expressive and soft, flashing and mobile, keen and candid. To a woman, given to observing the quality of a man's appearance, he was most fascinating. And he was so plainly not aware of his own charm that Miss Tredeker felt she could have told him he was comely without even knowing him very well.

"Are you the man who has the new engine?" she asked him, in order to relieve his embarrassment. He brightened at her knowledge, not knowing that this was the extent of it, except that her father had also mentioned that it was a failure and a fraud. He said that he was, but she cared nothing for that fact, and only watched the changing light in his eyes.

She would have schemed to draw him out if her father had not returned at this moment. He was apparently in a hurry and not inclined to give his daughter more time to get acquainted with his shophand.

"Let's go!" he said. "Come on, MacDonaid. I want you to go with me out to the Speedway. Alice, you come along and when we've finished with MacDonald, I'll drive you home in time to doll up for dinner."

Wondering what was on foot, Henry followed the girl out and stood beside a big, low, rakish touring car of evident power, to help her into the seat of the tonneau. Then, obeying Tredeker's command, he clambered to the front seat beside his employer. Without loss of time, Tredeker threw in his clutch, slid from low to intermediate and high and rolled off down the street.

"This car," said Tredeker bluffly, "is some car. I had it made especially for me in the Crescent shops and it has a duplicate of the engine that we entered in the race last year. I can tear off seventy-five and eighty miles an hour on the road with it when the top is down."

"But I hope you won't try it while I'm in it, father," said his daughter. Tredeker only laughed.

"She eats speed; she likes it," he explained to Henry. "Good game little girl, she is, as she should be. It's speed that makes motoring what it is, after all. I wouldn't give a hang for a car if I had to crawl along at twenty miles an hour all the time. What I like is to get out and burn up a road. Give me sixty miles an hour or I'm not enjoying myself. And the fellow that doesn't like to hit her up, can't stay with me, let me tell you."

Possibly the remark was only general and had no reference to Henry and his job, but the young man remembered his humiliating experience with Verrens and felt a sudden hope that speed would not be required of him and a sick fear lest the whir of the engine should tell him that the road was flowing more rapidly beneath the wheels.

But they only ran along at the legal limit for a mile or two, until the paved street changed to a dirt road and the houses began to thin out. Finally they passed a corn-field and turned at an obtuse angle into a country road that ran straight away as far as one could see.

"She's a bird of a car," said Tredeker. "Let's let her out a little and I'll show you what she can do, Mr. MacDonald."

Henry sank into his seat with a desperate desire to clutch the sides of it. He wished to tell Mr. Tredeker that he could not stand speed, but he knew that his fate depended on the impression he made and it was apparent that his employer would be displeased if he should object to rapid motion. So he said nothing and gritted his teeth.

The powerful engine began to purr with a more insistent note as the throttle was opened and the power flowed into the cylinders. Faster and faster she fled until the road flowed like a white ribbon of mist beneath the hood. The fences and telephone poles began to melt into a murky zigzag. The whole machine seemed to stretch and lengthen in the push of its motor and to bend lower to the road as a flying animal might have done.

A chill had run up Henry's spine as the speed increased. A lump interfered with his breathing, having settled at the same time in his throat and on is diaphragm. His lungs seemed to be compressed and is hair to be full of electricity. His scalp crawled under his cap. Before his eyes, which he could not tear from the road, a great, white, misty chaos began to form and curl forward like a wave to fall upon him. His head began to swim and his eyes to blur. The fear of the thing, the stark maddening terror of Speed crept up and seized his heart-strings, clutching them until he wished and tried to scream aloud.

He was a pitiful sight to one who could have seen and understood. But Tredeker merely glanced at him and smiled grimly and contemptuously at his staring eyes an distorted features. The girl behind him could only see his back crouched rigidly in the seat, and necessarily understood little of the ordeal he was undergoing.

The road that had seemed endless came to an abrupt turn and the car went giddily around a sharp curve. As it swerved and skidded slightly, Henry gave a hoarse cry and crumpled up in the seat. Tredecker looked at him and then throttled down. The brakes went on and the car stopped.

"He hasn't got much sand," said the Great Man, as he pulled the limp form of Henry upright. "Any man that's as big a baby as that is no good. He design an engine that'd win the Cosmopolitan! He doesn't even know what Speed is!"

His daughter, herself somewhat agitated by the terrific gait they had been maintaining, leaned forward as she sensed something wrong.

"Why, the poor fellow has fainted," she cried indignantly. "Father! Why didn't you drive slower? You might have seen that he couldn't stand it."

"I wanted to see for myself if the story I'd heard was true," said Tredeker. "I'm sorry for him, but I didn't know it was so bad as all that. Anyway, it's a cinch he won't do and Verrens was right. He can hunt another job."

His daughter, not heeding the meaning of this at the time, was busy in ministering to Henry. She had lifted his head to the back of the seat and slipped her arm under it. Now she bade her father find water, and he, not at all a hard-hearted man and sorry enough for Henry, hurried to a near-by farm-house.

"But he won't do," he repeated to himself. "He hasn't sand enough to know anything."

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something too, that will multiply their red blood corpuses and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by Hoeschler Bros., La Crosse, and other good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND
By DAISY DEAN

Edith Reeves, a lineal descendent of William Penn, reputed to have been the "greatset peace-at-any-price man of his time," has been captured by the movies.

The vivacious and pretty young lady has just appeared in her first film play, "The Moral Fabric," produced by Thomas H. Ince for the Triangle.

Though descended from the peace loving founder of the "City of Brotherly Love," she prefers to mention the fighting members of her family and points with pride to William Payntor of Chamborne House, Belgrave Square, London, who was major of the king's dragoon guards and earned numerous decorations for valor. He was one of the governors of Delaware in the early days of the history of that state.

What's Proper Garb For Arch Villain?

What is the proper garb and what type of haberdashery should an accomplished movie villain wear in pictures? Perhaps Stuart Holmes, one of the featured "heavies," can answer this successfully. In his most recent picture, "A Wife's Sacrifice," he is as usual, the accomplished bewitcher of women and this is what he wears to good advantage:

A heavy flake or chip straw hat of black and white straw that has the mixed colorings of an ear of Indian corn.. A plaid shirt of heavy material in dark colors, a soft and wide necktie of dark but contrasting colors. A soft, turn-down collar fastened in front with a gold bar-pin, a loose-fitting coat with patch pockets and gathered-in back and a belt-like effect. He wears summer weight trousers with a lengthwise stripe, black socks with a white circular pin stripe and low canvas oxfords. As may be imagined, he makes quite a picture.

Sam Bernard says he worked 13½ days in his ten-week contract with Keystone and received $25,000.

"One fellow in the picture has to be a victim of an auto accident," says Bernard, "and for that day he got $3. I helped pull him out from under the machine and got $400."

Billie Burke, though taking pictures for the great new "Billie Burke serial," is at the same time managing to enjoy life pretty much at Palm Beach. In off hours she's here, there, and everywhere, now in the ocean, now on horseback, now playing tennis. She is the most popular one with any crowd, no matter where she goes.

Theda Bara received this in her morning's mail:

"Do you like Carmen?"

"No. I like policemen better."

"But I didn't let it spoil the afternoon for me," reports Miss Bara.

Frank Daniels and Rose E. Tapley are working in a comedy which Ross D. Whytock wrote for the Vitagraph.

These tooth brush drills have been so popular when presented on the screen, that Dr. Farrand has volunteered to hold a tooth brush drill at the meeting next Saturday, and all contestants are requested to bring their toothbrushes with them at that time.

Another feature of this campaign is the writing of papers on the subject of the necessity of a toothbrush. Anyone interested in the contest may write a paper relating to the subject, and prizes will be awarded for the best papers.

Many Ask Mercy

CHICAGO, March 21.—Governor Locke Craig of North Carolina, on Monday was appealed to again to prevent the electrocution of Mrs. Ida Ball Warren, convicted murderess.

"We do not justify the act for which she was convicted; neither do we seek her pardon—merely 'life imprisonment,' instead of the death penalty," read the appeal sent by M. B. Kovnat, secretary of the Anti-Capital Punishment society of America. Mrs. Warren was convicted of slaying her husband.

All scalp irritation will disappear, and the hair will be brighter and glossier than ever before.

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach or bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

The Strongest Persuasive

(From the Christian Advocate)

The Young Women's Christian Association never did a more characteristic piece of work, in point of spirit, organization, service and success, than that on the exposition grounds at San Francisco last year. It served well the visitors, a million and a half in all,, but its best service was for the employed young women in the exhibition palaces and the amusement zone, many of whom would have been friendless without these kindly ministries. As the fair neared its end the association showed its interest in the girls by endeavoring to find them good business positions, an undertaking in which it had remarkable success. It even conducted classes in stenography and business courses, in which girls might prepare themselves for better situations. One day a stranger, little accustomed to such altruistic manifestations, came to the secretaries in charge to make close inquiries concerning the work which the Association had accomplished for the employed women. As his information grew he greatly marveled. He found that there was no "comeback," that no one in the Association received any profit for it, that it was in fact an expression, as nearly as an organization can express an idea, of Christ's attitude of helpfulness toward those who were in need of intelligent and sympathetic friendship. "I declare," he said to the secretary, as he turned to go, "almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian!"

The persuasive power of love in action is more effective than close reasoning of righteousness and self-control and judgment to come. The latter may make sinners tremble, but the former tends to command their approval and win them to better ways. The church is at its best when, instead of uttering stern denunciation of the sins of the community, it is exerting itself in every way to help the boys and girls, to relieve the sick and to befriend all who need its aid. It is trite to say, what the truth compels, that the individual Christian who is censorious of his neighbor's conduct will probably have less success in winning him religion than the one who visits him in his time of affliction and shows him brotherly kindness. Many a church has lost its power to recommend the gospel to those about it, because its members, individually and collectively, fall so far short of the neighborliness which the Master illustrated by the Good Samaritan. It is because the Young Women's Christian Association has everywhere proven itself in the best sense the "friend of girls," that it gained the approval of the public, and persuaded many, not only almost, but altogether to follow the Way of the Victorious Life. As it celebrates this month its jubilee, the Church may well praise it for its spirit and its work. It has ever been the hand maid of the churches—some have said the Church's "maid-of all-work." It has been a persuasive manifestation of the spirit of Christ. If in the next period of its development in its eagerness to get closer to any group or girls, it shall move away from the divine Christ, who was the inspiration of its founders and leaders for half a century, it will set the signal for its own decline.

ALICE BRADY AND HOLBROOK BLINN IN "BALLET GIRL

Two great dramatic stars, international favorites of stage and screen are seen in the new and lavish World Film corporation production, "The Ballett Girl," which comes to the Bijou theater on Wednesday, this week. Alice Brady and Holbrook Blinn, whose names are known and art admired wherever there is a "legitimate" or a motion picture theater, appear in characters especially written to suit their personalities by Compton MacKenzie, the author of "The Ballet Girl." Miss Brady's marked emotional gifts and winning charm were never displayed to better advantage than in this photo-drama of plot and passion, and Mr. Blinn also rises to the supreme heights of his art in a character entirely new in conception and development.

The producer was not content with two such names as Alice Brady and Holbrook Blinn. The remainder of the extraordinary long cast of "The Ballet Girl" fairly bristles with famous names, most of which have twinkled in electric lights above the portals of Broadway playhouses during the past season. All in all, Mr. Selznick feels that with such players as Julia Stuart, Stanhope Wheatcroft, Phil Robson and tiny, dainty little Madge Evans, the wonderful child actress, in the cast, not to mention a host of others equally popular, "The Ballet Girl" puts forward the strongest assemblage of players so far enlisted for a great feature.

QUICKLY STOPS HEAD COLDS AND SNUFFLES

Catarrhal Germs Cause of Most Colds. New Germicidal Air Treatment Best Remedy For These Common Ailments

Reliable authorities say that upwards of 90 per cent of the so-called colds in the head and throat are in reality dangerous indications of the presence of acute catarrh. When you hear a person sneeze or cough its almost certain they are throwing catarrh germs into the air for some other person to breathe and its just as certain that the person breathing these germs will soon have catarrh or a catarrhal cold. The time to make these germs harmless and drive out your catarrhal cold is the very instant you feel a desire to sneeze or cough, or start to snuffle and wipe your nose every few minutes.

The quickest and surest way to stop a head cold and drive catarrh germs out of your system is to pour a few drops of the oil of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) into one of the Hyomei inhaling devices which comes with each large package and place the inhaler between your lips and breathe the germicidal but pleasant smelling air into your nose, throat and lungs. This air utterly destroys all catarrh germ life, quickly opens the closed air passages, makes breathing easy, clears your stuffed up head, cleans out your throat and ends your snuffling and nose blowing. There certainly is no quicker or more satisfactory way of breaking up a cold, even after it is well started, and a few weeks' use will do away with all danger of chronic catarrh. Sold by reputable druggists everywhere who usually agree to return the full purchase price to any who use it and are not satisfied. In buying Hyomei for the first time be very sure to get the large size which contains the inhaler as this is very essential for best results.

MERCHANT DECK STORES FOR BIG SPRING OPENING

Last Part of the Week Will See Unique "Community Spring Opening" in the Down-town Emporiums

Window-dressers and sales-forces in all of the down-town stores today were bending every energy to preparation for the big style show which will occupy the last three days of this week. "Community Spring Opening," the occasion has been styled by the merchants, and it is unique in merchandising history of the city in that it marks the first time that all the merchants have taken the same date to begin the display of their stocks of vernal goods.

Stores, particularly those devoted to affairs that appeal to the heart of womankind, are blossoming with delicate-colored fabrics and frocks today. All the new fancies are being prepared for exhibition.

Announcements of what the merchants have to offer for inspection and purchase will appear in the TRIBUNE tomorrow. The "ads" in Wednesday's paper will contain not the least interesting part of the day's news.

Fussers Flock To Tennis Courts At Flight Of Snow

One place at the normal school has increased in popularity about three hundred percent during the past few days. Now that the snow is gone, the attention of the students addicted to fussing and other crimes has been turned from the benches to the tennis courts. Both the co-eds and the men ever waiting to seize a court as soon as it is vacated. The crowded condition of the asphalt playgrounds, however, will be remedied when the new courts are completed just west of the present ones. The ground was leveled fo this purpose last fall.

NORTH SIDE

VETERAN ENGINEER MAY LOSE ARM AS ACCIDENT RESULT

In the first accident that has overtaken him in his thirty-five years of railroading, Joseph L. Byers, 1348 Kane street, one of the best known engineers on the Burlington system, yesterday morning suffered injuries that possibly may mean the loss of an arm. Physicians today are working to save the member, which was terribly torn.

The veteran engineer was looking over his locomotive at the conclusion of his run on No. 57 early yesterday. His arm was between the side rod and the engine proper when the engine moved. His arm was caught and crushed below the elbow. The muscles of the forearm were torn loose. Dr. R. H. Gray, who dressed the injury, said today that there were bright prospects of avoiding amputation.

How the engine came to move at the unlucky moment when Byers' arm was in jeopardy was a mystery. No one was in the cab, it is said, when the engine gave its unexpected jump.

Doctor Says Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate People 200% in Ten Days

In many instances—Persons have suffered untold agony for years doctoring for nervous weakness, stomach, liver or kidney disease or some other ailment when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood.—How to tell.

New York, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, Specialist, of this city said: If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately benecifial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Mariner's Pharmacy and all other druggists.

HERE'S NEW VIGOR FOR OVERWORKED STOMACHS

Hundreds of the best druggists who have been in the drug business long enough to have their own opinion of the best way of selling medicines, say the plan adopted by Mi-o-na, the great dyspepsia remedy, is the fairest they ever heard of. The Mi-o-na people don't believe that a medicine ought to be paid for unless it does the user some good. And so Mi-o-na is always sold under a positive guarantee to relieve dyspepsia or to refund the money. You simply leave 50 cents on deposit with your druggist, and if, after you have used the box of Mi-o-na, you decide that it has done you no good, all you have to do is to tell him so and he will return your money.

Hundreds of people can tell how they have been relieved of stomach agonies by using this remarkable remedy. It is not simply a food digester; it is a medicine that puts all of the digestive organs into normal condition and gives ruddy, glowing, vigorous health. A change for the better will be seen after the first few doses of Mi-o-na, and its continued use will soon give the power to eat most anything at any time and not suffer distress afterward.

Mi-o-na is sold under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not stop all stomach distress. This is the strongest proof that can be offered as to the merit of the medicine.

Nothing lessens a man's success in his work or a woman's fascinating personality more than a weak stomach, with its attending evils. Use Mi-o-na and see how much more there is in life. Get it from any leading druggist in this vicinity.

"MY HOME TOWN" GIRL"

Hyams and McIntyre, who enjoy as great a share of popularity as any other musical comedy stars in America, will come to the La Crosse Theater Sunday, March 26, matinee and night, in their new success, "My Home Town Girl," especially written for them by Frank M. Stammers, with music by Louis A. Hirsch. The piece, which is produced by Perry J. Kelly, possesses a wealth of scenic and costume equipment and an excellence of individual and chorus impersonation rarely shown in musical comedy performance. This delightful attraction combining the best work for Stammers and Hirsch, has set a mark in this special field of performance that will tax the talents of other authors and composers to reach. Although newly presented, it has been pronounced easily the musical success of the present season.

Among those in the well known supporting cast are, Eda von Luke, Alma Youlin, Maude Beatty, Doris Vernon, Dorothy Reich, Roy Purviance, Charles Horne, Charles Holly and a large chorus of pretty girls. The company carries its own symphony orchestra for the correct interpretation of the beautiful Hirsch score.

STOCK FOOD

"The Rosary" will be the offering at the La Crosse theater tonight by the Ted Dalley Stock company.

On Wednesday night the Ted Dalley Stock Company is going to hold a Grab-bag party. Thursday afternoon, "Our Wives" will be the play and our wives and their friends will all be presented with a beautiful piece of nearly silverware. Friday night Mr. Dalley has got a bunch of new talent together for amateur night performance—the kid harmonica player will be one of the features—the kid says he is a mouth organ player—but harmonica sounds more artistic—and he is some artist and then there are other feature acts—a lot of fun is promised.

claimed are those of the coastal islands, where once the planters of the famous Sea Island Cotton lived in baronial style. All that was best in the old southern regime was to be found in the picturesque life of the island plantations. Here grew a peculiar cotton of very long staple which brought two dollars a pound in those days, before machinery increased the usefulness of the shorter staples. The soil was very rich and the laborers were slaves. Wealth was abundant and easily won. Hunting and social life were the diversions of the planters, who traveled from island to island in great canoes, manned by eight or ten stalwart negro oarsmen. These crews attained great skill and there were frequent regattas at which the canoes from the different plantations raced for prizes. At night the planters often journeyed across the bay to Charleston, their long boats decked with lanterns and their negro boatmen singing as they rowed.

For many years now, the greater part of the sea islands have been a tangled waste. Some few planters still live there and come to town in prosaic motor-boats, but for the most part the deer and the wild fowl share them with herds of wild cattle and goats, that are hunted with the rifle. On Bull Island one of these wild herds was long led by a bull that was afraid of nothing. When the island was converted into a shooting preserve, a party of hunters were charged by this bovine lord of the island and every one of them forced to take to the trees. The bull was then killed by a man who had managed to take his gun up the tree with him. The head of this famous animal may still be seen at Charleston.

Deer Are Many

The favorite game of all the Carolina hunters are the deer that abound all over the coastal plain. The swamps and the deep pine forests bedded with broom sedge and undergrown with fragrant thickets of myrtle and liveoak, make an ideal cover for the deer, and three hundred years of settlement finds them still abundant. They are hunted with hounds, and shot from stands along the well known runways. Christmas and Thanksgiving hunts on the plantations are in special favor, and upon these occasions great packs of hunds are gathered, and large parties including many women, ride after them.

There have been many famous stags in the woods about Charleston, that successfully eluded the hunters for years, though they were often seen and well known. The Bem Bow Buck, which was killed last fall, was known to every hunter in and about Charleston, by his splendid antlers and his bold and cunning tactics when hunted. He would always leave the swamps and run straight across the open plantation fields, in full view, but out of range of every cover. At one time he almost ran over a darkey gathering sweet potatoes, and is said to have frightened the man so badly that he became a deacon in the church. His end was ignominious. In one of his bold runs he blundered upon a boy hunting birds with a single barrel shotgun, who killed him at short range.

One of the most picturesque plantations in the vicinity of Charleston is owned as a country club by a corporation of Charleston folk. A number of others are still held by the families that lived upon them for generations, and are used as country seats. In many instances the younger generations have bought back the storied homesteads that the older lost.

Buy Back Old Homes

One of the most typical of these homes is Medway plantation, some twenty-five miles from Charleston, owned by Captain Samuel G. Stoney. Upon this estate is the tomb of the colonial landgrave, who founded it and who died there in 1649. There is probably not an older home in America, and every generation has left its mark about the place. Part of the house was built in colonial days, and a part soon after the Revolution. There is still traceable the old race track where the planters used to train their blooded runners for the Charleston races.

The house crowns a grassy knoll shaded by broad-armed live oaks, festooned with Spanish moss, heavily shading the lawn and meeting in a solid arch above the long driveway. Beds of Cherokee roses and fragrant white japonica bank the walls of the house itself, which is a weathered brick with Dutch gables, great chimneys and wide verandas. All about are the tangled swamps and pine forests, opening here and there to show a silver glint of creek or bayou.

A Haunted Chamber

Within you are shown the halls and rooms still furnished with the spindle-legged and ornate mahoganies that came across the water centuries ago. There is a secret cellar where provisions and arms were hidden during the Civil war, and over head a haunted bed-room. It was to have been the bridal chamber of a daughter of the house in Colonial times. Her fiance was killed while hunting on his wedding day, and she may still be seen at twilight sitting before her window, looking wistfully for his return.

These old homes and the legends and stories that cling about them give you a vivid impression of what the life of the south must have been in those never to be forgotten "days before the war"—a patriarchal life of abundance and leisure, moving pleasantly in well known ways, rich in tradition and a culture all its own. Faintly you glimpse what the southerners fought for, what they mean today when they say, "The Old South!"

Normal "Y's" Meet

The regular weekly meetings of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. were held at the normal school at 10.40 yesterday morning. The greater share of the meeting of the men's association was taken up with a business session. Following this Roy Ahlstrom led the young men in a discussion of the problems of college life and its ideals. Art Strum followed with an interesting discussion of the benefits of athletics and where they are liabel to fail in accomplishing their various purposes.

The most important matter taken up at the men's business meeting yesterday was that of electing two delegates to a state convention of college and normal school Y. M. C. A.'s, which will be held at Milwaukee on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The La Crosse normal association will be represented at Milwaukee by Harry Grausnick of Winona, newly elected president of the Y. M. C. A. and William Walker, delegate at large.

The cast which was selected at a try-out about a month ago has been at work daily during the past ten days brushing up on the details. Professor D. O. Coate has been coaching the cast.

The Buskins do not believe in letting things drag. Another cast selected from members of the club have been working equally hard on a comedy which will follow next week, probably on Saturday night.

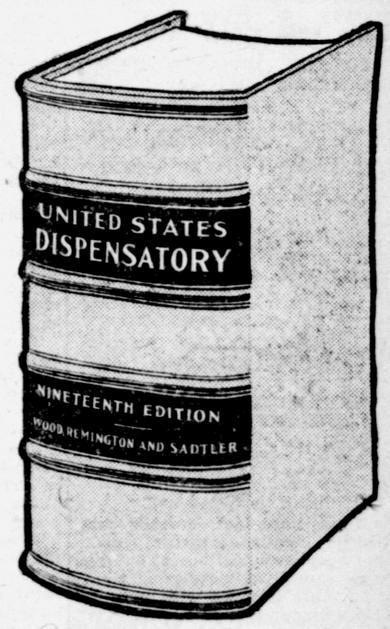
Coffee Facts

Read what the 19th edition United States Dispensatory (page 253), the guiding authority for chemists, druggists, and physicians, says about the drug, caffeine, of which there is about 2½ grains in the average cup of coffee:

"Given in large dose to the lower animals, caffeine produces hurried respiration, restlessness, slightly lowered, followed by a markedly elevated temperature, tetanic and clonic convulsions, progressive paralysis, and finally death from paralytic arrest of respiration."



Although man is stronger and more resistant, it is a well-known scientific fact that caffeine, in coffee, is a frequent cause of headache, nervousness, biliousness, heart flutter and many other ills.

Not at one large dose, but by little doses repeated regularly does this subtle, habit-forming drug get in its work, and, sooner or later, many coffee drinkers suffer.

Before that time comes, suppose you make a personal test—quit coffee ten days and use in on Villa were also unheard from.

That Villa has given them "the slip" was not certain, but authentic advices indicated the possibility that he had outflanked both the American expedition and the Carranzistas. The bandits engaged just east of Namiquipa now are believed to have been part of Villa's 1,500 men who were recently reported in the vicinity of Bachiniva and San Geronimo, Chihuahua.

Villa himself was believed to be in another part of the Guerrero mountains, although his exact whereabouts apparently was unknown to officials in Juarez and El Paso.

Considerable apprehension was shown over the announcement in Juarez that communication with points near Namiquipa over the Mexico-Northwestern line had been cut. Before trace of Villa was lost it was learned that Villa, instead of disbanding his followers as the Carranza authorities announced, was recruiting troops in the districts he traversed. Suspicion also resulted from the presence of large bodies of Carranzistas between Pershing's command and the border. Villa's influence on the de facto generals in northern Mexico was feared.

Main Body at Casas Grandes

Major Manual Prieto of Gavira's staff in Juarez stated today that according to his latest advices, the United States expedition's main body was encamped outside of Casas Grandes. The district there has been calm since the entry of American troops, Prieto declaring no anti-American disorders have been reported from any section of Mexico.

"Carranza's proven control of the Mexican people," said Prieto, "makes it impossible for anyone to successfully attempt another revolution in the country.

Gavira was asked if Villa had been killed or captured and to both answered: "No."

United States cavalry under Colonel George Dodd early today were reported on forced march from Cruses toward Namiquipa to reinforce Carranza troops under Colonel Cano reported engaged in a fierce running fight with Villa's bandits.

Encircled by Carranza and American forces, Villa was thought to be making a desperate effort to reach the Santa Clara canyon in the Guerrero mountains, twenty miles east of Namiquipa.

To trap Villa if he escapes the central column from Cruses, Brig.-Gen. Pershing has sent cavalry squadrons southward to the Babricora ranch and to Carmen on either side of Namiquipa.

One of these three columns should be within striking distance of Villa's rear guard within twenty-four or thirty-six hours.

Aeroplanes May Aid

Several aeroplanes with the expedition spent last night on Mexican soil near Ascension. They were within a few hours' flight of the Namiquipa battlefield and may possibly be of assistance to the American reinforcements in locating the bandit's followers.

The aeroplanes would be of great value in scouting miles ahead of the pursuing forces.

Gavira pointed to the battle at Namiquipa in denial of reports that Carranza troops are disposed to let Villa get away and give him an equal chance with the American army on his trail.

"I think it is only a question of time until Villa is taken, dead or alive said Gavira.

General Gavira's statement at Juarez was as follows:

"While the wires between here and Casas Grandes are down, I have reason to believe that Francisco Villa and his band of outlaws are entirely surrounded by our troops and the American forces. I think it is only a question of a short time until he is taken dead or alive. I have heard nothing yet concerning the outcome of the Naminquipa engagement."

No Sign of Friction

The Carranza consul intimated that the United States expedition has established a base near Casas Grandes. Reports that the Carranza garrison had been withdrawn to Juarez to avoid friction remained unconfirmed. Even if a large Carranza force has been placed between the expedition in Mexico and the border, it was pointed out that the thousands of American troops at Fort Bliss and Columbus were sufficient protection against the implied threat. There has been no sign of friction between the de facto government generals in Juarez and the expeditionary forces.

Carranza Relenting?

It was reported, but confirmation from Queretaro was lacking, that in return for President Wilson's aid to Carranza permission was to be given the war department to send troops and provisions by railroad to the expedition's Mexican base.

Troops continue to leave Columbus camp for Mexico.

The number of soldiers of all branches who have crossed the border and taken up the chase after Villa was today believed to be upwards of 7,000.

of Russian artillery in recent fighting.

The bridgehead position lies on the south bank of the Dniester, thirty-eight miles northwest of Czernowitz and has been the scene of desperate fighting.

"The Russians, in the morning, had succeeded in blasting a breach 300 yards wide," said the Austrian war office statement. "At 5 p. m., Colonel Planck decided to evacuate. He totally destroyed the trench position. Small detachments with wounded gained the south bank of the Dniester in boats, but soon the concentrate fire of the enemy made it impossible to cross the river. The Austrian sappers and dragoons fought their way on the north bank of the Dniester through the town of Uscieszko, which was strongly occupied by the Russians, and joined the Austrian troops established on the heights north of Zaleyzczki Monday morning."

CARRANZA PROPOSAL FOR HUNT PROTOCOL IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Cabinet and President Say Hunt for Villa Should Be Carried On Under Written Agreement

ASKS NUMBER OF TROOPS

First Chief Requests How Many Soldiers U. S. Expects to Send Over the Border

By ROBERT J. BENDER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Marh 21.—President Wilson and the cabinet today agreed this government should assent to General Carranza's suggestion that the Villa hunt in Mexico be carried on under a formal written working agreement.

A message to that effect probably will be sent Carranza late today.

The cabinet is also understood to have considered a request from Carranza in the form of an inquiry as to the number of troops the United States expects to send over the border. What reply will be made to this is not known. It is expected the first chief will be assured that only sufficient troops to capture Villa and break up his band will enter Mexico.

It is not planned to sign the suggested protocol at once, since time will have to be given both governments for ample consideration of counter proposals. In the meantime the cabinet was unanimous in favoring an attitude of acquiescence in any "reasonable" suggestions Carranza might make. Carranza's difficult position was considered. The president pointed out some of the obstacles which must be surmounted.

The cabinet agreed provision could be made in the suggested protocol to meet all questions which might arise in the future and which, without such a formal agreement, might embarrass not only Carranza but the United States as well.

With the prospect that Carranza's permission for American use of the Mexican railways may be delayed several days, the war department has placed an order for fifty-four new auto trucks for use in transporting supplies beyond the border. The new order, to be delivered at the border within three days, brings the total new trucks for Mexican use to 108.

KOHN IS NAMED FOR SUCCESSOR OF "TED" RITTER

Internal revenue collector Burt Williams, of Madison, has sent to Washington for confirmation the name of Frank Kohn, alderman from the second ward, to succeed the late Theodore J. Mr. Kohn's candidacy received strong endorsement in this city and the forwarding of his name to Senator Husting is regarded as final. Mr. Lehrbach expects Mr. Kohn to assume his duties April 1.

HARMONY KEYNOTE OF ENTENTE MEET

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, March 21.—A greater entente, bringing not only France, England and Russia but the smaller of the allies into complete accord, will result from the conference to be held here late this week or early next.

Military and political leaders of the allies were assembling here today in advance of the meeting. They plan to organize for concerted action both in a military and political way to shorten the war.

Such a union has long been demanded by leading statesmen of all the allied countries.

There is nothing quite so monotonous as the smile that won't come off.

LIBRARY PROMISES APPEAL IF LOSER CITY WILL ACCEPT

Favorable Decision on Contention in Petition for Mandamus Writ Will End the Tangle

An appeal will be taken on behalf of the La Crosse Public Library in case Judge Higbee's decision in the mandamus suit against the city goes against the library, it was declared today by Judge C. L. Baldwin, counsel for the trustees. Judge Baldwin was in conference with Mayor Bentley this morning, presumably concerning the library matter.

That the city will not appeal, in case the library wins its contention that municipal support in the sum of $6,000 is legally justified, was believed probable today. It was pointed out that the mandamus suit is a friendly action resorted to in order to straighten out the legal perplexities of the situation as regards the library. City officials are interested in getting the matter settled rather than in contesting the library's point. For this reason, and the additional circumstance that the city officials who have refused the payment are eager to do so if it can be legally done, it was expected that a favorable decision on the library's suit would be unquestioned by the city.

There will be little or no evidence introduced at the hearing of the mandamus petition next Saturday before Judge Higbee. The city, it is said, will not question the facts as cited by Judge Baldwin's petition for a writ, and the case will take the form of arguments to the court.

ENTENTE NATIONS TO FIGHT GERMAN PURPOSE IN TRADE

LONDON, March 21.—Germany will never again "raise her helmet" in a world engaged in peaceful pursuits, President Walter Runciman of the board of trade declared in an exclusive interview given the United Press today officially outlining for the first time the allies' commercial plans after the war.

England does not contemplate a throttling that will leave the German people crushed in poverty, unable to rise again, he said.

"But peaceful preparations as a means to a military end will never again be tolerated by England, France, Russia and Italy," Runciman asserted. "Nor can we submit to most favored nations' clauses in commercial treaties being utilized to the detriment of any one of the allied countries."

CRONES INDICTED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

SEA TRAGEDIES MAKE VON TIRPITZ PHYSICAL WRECK

Deaths on Ocean of Friends Break Down Former German Sea Lord

(By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, March 21.—Admiral Von Tirpitz has become a physical and mental wreck by brooding over the deaths of scores of his closest friends in the German navy, according to reports in general circulation in diplomatic and military circles in Lucerne and Berne.

A high Swiss military authority, who credits the reports, gave me some of the information that has reached him recently, just before I left Berne.

"Von Tirpitz," he said, "resembles in sensitiveness the great Japanese military leader, who, overwhelmed by the memory of vast losses of Japanese soldiers he sent against Port Arthur, committed suicide upon the death of the late Japanese emperor.

"Von Tirpitz has died a thousand deaths since the war began. He has bade farewell to hundreds of splendid young submarine officers he sent out to perish miserably under the water. The code among German submariners requires that they shoot themselves when the situation of their U boat becomes hopeless. Von Tirpitz has pictured to himself—for such is the nature of his mentality—too many terrible under water scenes involving his friends. It is known beyond a doubt that Von Tirpitz felt himself living in a world of horrors. Even the kaiser himself was unable to calm his self reproach.

"German military men say the Lusitania incident was the beginning of Von Tirpitz breakdown. He did not visit the admiralty offices for three days after the liner and its helpless human cargo went down. Each new sinking of passenger boats only increased his depression. His subordinates made it a practice not to report the disappearance of submarines unless Von Tirpitz demanded to know the whereabouts of such and such an undersea boat.

"The strain became too much. Both the foreign and German newspapers—the latter boastingly—connected the name of Von Tirpitz with submarine horrors. The thing became too personal. Von Tirpitz was a man of magnificent physique before the war, but it simply broke him down."

LA FOLLETTE HAS HAND IN PRIMARY IN NORTH DAKOTA

BISMARCK, N. D., March 21.—The contest between Senator Robert M. La Follette and Henry D. Estabrook, of New York, in the presidential primary today, is proceeding without excitement. La Follette is showing strength in the rural districts and there seems little enthusiasm for Estabrook.

Woodrow Wilson is unopposed on the democratic ticket.

Weather conditions reduced the vote. In the southwestern corner of the state heavy snow was falling today. In the northern section of the state, roads are impassable, a condition that has prevailed for weeks. Estimates were that only 60 to 75 per cent of the normal vote would be cast. Jamestown, Valley City and Grand Forks have bitterly fought city elections today, calculated to increase the presidential vote.

PHILIPP ATTITUDE TOWARD BOARDS IS EXPOSED BY "BOB"

WAUKESHA, Wis., March 21.—(Special.)—Governor Philipp's hostile attitude toward the state tax commission and his view of the railroad commission were made the subject of an address by Senator La Follette in reopening his campaign here last night.

Senator La Follette reviewed the attitude of Governor Philipp toward the tax commission. He said that Mr. Philipp had an old grudge against the tax commission and throughout his campaign for nomination it came out in disparaging comment. He charged that the governor wanted to hamstring the efficiency of the tax commission. He reviewed the history of the bill in the last session of the legislature to saddle the work of the tax commission upon the constitutional officers, and the plan to have the income tax assessed locally. Both of these measures he denounced as makeshifts which would have destroyed the efficiency of the commission.

Senator La Follette then reviewed the work of the industrial commission, pointing out that it was the intent of the governor when elected to "emasculate" this law by placing its administration in the hands of the county courts.

BELIEVE CARRANZA WILL LET UNITED STATES USE ROADS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 21.—That General Carranza will grant the United States government's request that American troops be permitted to use Mexican railway lines to transport supplies to interior bases, is generally believed here. Telegrams urgently advising the first chief to accede to the request were forward to Queretaro last night. One San Antonian believed to have more influence with Carranza than any other American, recommended this course be followed without delay.

"Put unlimited trust in President Wilson," was the concluding sentence in his telegram.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

FIRST AVIATOR FALLS TO BAD INJURY WHILE WITH SCOUTING SQUAD

EL PASO, Texas, March 21.—Lieutenant Thomas S. Bowen was seriously injured "somewhere in Mexico" today when his aeroplane fell to the ground while Bowen was on scout duty for Pershing's expedition. Bowen joined the aviation corps from San Antonio.

Bowen's injury is the first instance of a United States aviator being wounded under actual conditions of warfare. There are six or seven machines from the San Antonio army school with the expedition in Mexico. Daily since their arrival in Columbus last week they made long scouting flights and brought back reports of the nature of the country and of the bands in the path of the expedition. The aeroplanes made their base on Mexican soil for the first time yesterday.

A number of American army aviators have been killed or injure at th tors have been killed or injured at the San Diego and San Antonio schools since aviation became a regular branch of the fighting force.

Jury Refuses To Let Carroll Call Off Horse-Trade

He who lets John Barleycorn be his adviser in a horse trade must be resigned to his fate. That was in effect the decision of a jury in Justice C. W. Hunt's court Saturday afternoon. The verdict was against Edward Carroll, teamster, who sued John Blajeska, proprietor of the Bluff Arcade, to get back a horse which he declared he had swapped not wisely.

Carroll testified that he woke up in the barn of a friend with a large head-ache, and was astonished to find a strange beast with a game leg tethered nearby. Blajeska and his bartender testified that Carroll was apparently in possession of his faculties when he made the trade, for which he got $25 to "boot."

The trade took place at 2 o'clock last Monday morning, both parties declared.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds, is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you—at a cost of only 54 cents—a full pint of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

You will be pleasantly surprised how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

REGARD FOR THE DE FACTOS WILL GOVERN ACTIONS

Administration Wishes to Do Nothing Which Might Cause Trouble for Carranza

NOT TO DEMAND USE OF ROADS

United States Will Devise Other Means of Transportation if Consent Is Not Given

By ROBERT J. BENDER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 21.—President Wilson will do nothing in Mexico to embarrass General Carranza. The wishes of the de facto government will be adhered to in every possible way while the American expedition is pursuing Villa. This was made clear at a conference Monday between the president and Solicitor Polk of the state department.

It became known that if Carranza deems it advisable not to permit the use of Mexican railroads by the American government in transporting troops or supplies, the United States will not demand that the roads be turned over or take them by force.

The United States army will devise other means of transportation. That Carranza is in a very troublesome position was admitted in official circles here. The president appreciates this, it was said, and will do everything in his power to assist the first chief in maintaining his position with the Mexican people.

While no reply has been received from Carranza, no concern is felt over the delay, and a favorable answer is expected within twenty-four hours.

Advices to the white house from Consul Rogers at Qurretaro say the de facto government is entirely satisfied with the manner in which the United States is carrying on its expedition.

The president was informed Monday that Carranza formally requested that no troops be allowed to occupy Casas Grandes or any other Mexican town during Villa's pursuit. Orders however, already had been sent to army headquarters making it clear that the troops are not to occupy those cities.

Dispatches to the war department reported all quiet along the border.

General Scott forwarded to General Funston the request of Representative Smith of Texas for additional troops at Presidio, Texas.

Vera Cruz and Tampico conditions were termed "satisfactory" in navy department messages.

NEW BEATITUDES POKE IRONY AT WARLIKE PASTORS

"Blessed Are They That Mourn for They Shall Be Pensioned," Says Anti-Preparedness Phrase

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The Anti "Preparedness" committee gave out today a "new version of the beautitudes, according to the 'preparedness' school of metropolitan preachers."

The text is by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes of the Church of Messiah, New York City, and reads as follows:

"Blessed are the proud in spirit for theirs is the kingdom of earth.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be pensioned.

"Blessed are the mighty, for they shall inherit the earth.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after preparedness, for they shall be drilled.

"Blessed are the merciless, for they shall obtain victory.

"Blessed are the sure in heart, for they shall steal God.

"Blessed are the war-makers, for they shall be called the champions of God.

"Blessed are they that are conscripted for preparedness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of earth.

"Blessed are ye when men approach you and tax you and conscribe you; for my sake rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is our reward in battle; for so conscripted they the soldiers that were before you.

"Ye are the best of the earth; but if the best have lost their security, wherefore shall they not be bested. They are henceforth good for nothing, but to be cast down and trodden under foot of men.

"Think not that I am come to destroy; I come not to destroy, but to fortify. For verily I say unto you, that heaven and earth may pass away, unless all be prepared.—Except your preparedness exceed the preparedness of the Huns and Japanese, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of earth.

"Ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, thou shalt not kill, and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment. But I say unto you., whosoever is not prepared against his brother, shall be in danger of the judgment. x x x Deal with thine adversary quickly, lest haply the adversary refer thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the court and then be cast into arbitration. Verily I say unto young, thou shall by no means come out thence, till justice be done.

"Ye have heard that it was said, resist not evil. But I say unto you, that this is ridiculous. Whosoever shall smite thee upon the right cheek, smash him upon the other also. And whosoever shall seek to take away thy coat, seize his cloak also. An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth! x x x Whatsoever ye fear that men do unto you, prepare ye also to do unto them. May this be the law—and the profits!"

"THE LAST ACT" PLAY WITHIN PLAY

A play within a play is the dramatic medium through which Thomas H. Ince helps to develop, logically the plot upon which he has built his newest Triangle play, "The Last Act," in which Bessie Barriscale is starred.

Miss Barriscale is an actress who obtains a good part when she needs it most and thereby gains great success and attendant social recognition. Into her life comes a prosperous lawyer, whose wife neglects him for her charities. It is by reproducing part of the play in which his star appears that Ince reveals to her the folly and consequences of permitting a continuation of her relations with the lawyer.

"The Last Act" will be featured at the Majestic next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Says Woman's Beauty Depends Upon Health

Health and Vigor Necessitate Regulation of Organs of Elimination.

Skin foods and face creams and powders cannot make a woman beautiful, because beauty lies deeper than that—it depends on health. In most cases the basis of health and the cause of sickness can be traced to the action of the bowels.

The headache, the lassitude, the sallow skin, and the lusterless eyes are usually caused by constipation. An ideal remedy for women, and one that is especially suited to their delicate organisms, is found in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild laxative compound, pleasant to the taste and free from opiates and narcotic drugs of every description. Mrs. Gertrude Jordan, 522 North Liberty St., Indianapolis, Ind., says: "It is simply fine; I have never been able to find anything to compare with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I started using it for the baby and now it is my family standby in all cases where a laxative is needed."

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle; a trial bottle can be obtained, free of charge, by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

Send for The Cook's Book By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill It's FREE

Our instructions to the famous editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine were: "Get up a book of recipes of the things people like best. Find the best way to make and bake each one. Then write it out so plainly that even an inexperienced housewife can't have a failure."

"The Cook's Book" was the result. Some of the 90 recipes were originated, many of them were improved upon, and all were personally tested by this best known authority on cooking in America, and she tells so clearly how she made everything that one cannot go astray.

While some of the cakes and pastry are elaborate enough for any occasion, the recipes are all thoroughly practical and call for no expensive and unusual ingredients. In addition to telling how to make them, the book is beautifully illustrated in colors showing how to arrange and serve the dishes appetizingly.

More than half a million of "The Cook's Book" are now in use in American households. Yet the demand is constantly increasing. Many send for two or three at a time to give to friends or young housekeepers. Don't depend on borrowing one from a neighbor—have one of your own.

How to Get "The Cook's Book"

In every 25c can of K C Baking Powder is packed a colored certificate. Send us one of these certificates (paste it on a postal card if you like) with your name and address plainly written, and "The Cook's Book" will be mailed free of charge. Only one book for each certificate.

PROMOTERS SEE MUTUAL BENEFIT IN TWO EVENTS

The week of March 26 to April 1 holds two big events for the sport world of La Crosse. One is the annual Tri-State bowling tournament on the Malloy alleys. The other is the boxing show of the Kannia A. C. in Yeomen hall.

Promoters of the two events predict record attendance. The tournament backers look for many entries from out of town fight fans and boxing show promoters expect the tournament to bring many fight followers to La Crosse.

Len Rowlands of Milwaukee, who hooks up with Johnny Salvator of St. Paul, in the feature bout of the show, will be in La Crosse the day before the fight, Matchmaker Harris was informed today. Rowlands is working out in a Cream City gymnasium.

SCHOOLS MAKE SURVEY

OCONTO, Wis., March 21.—Pupils of schools in Oconto county are getting practical work in arithmetic and in compiling statistics by making a survey of the county. They give the number and size of farms in their district, number and location of silos, barns and other buildings, acreage of various crops, home conveniences and other such information. Each pupil who desires an eighth grade diploma must make three of these surveys.

MILWAUKEE WANTS ERICKSON TO STAY FOR 'PHONE RULING

MILWAUKEE, March 21.—D. W. Hoan, city attorney, has written to Halford Erickson, member of the railroad rate commission, whose resignation is said to be in the hands of the governor, asking that he remain on the commission until a decision has been rendered in the telephone case. Mr. Hoan calls attention to the fact that the case was instituted in 1909 and that the city joined in 1911, asking a reduction in telephone rates and better service. It is suggested that if a new commissioner is appointed he will have to go over all the testimony in the case before becoming familiar with it and that an indefinite delay is likely to result.

And some men are so hard to please that they are not even satisfied with themselves.

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

IT'S different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Willard About To Become A Proud Father

Friends Aver Champion's Illness Was Bluff to Remain at Home; Bashfulness Hinted At

CHICAGO, March 21.—The secret's out. Jess Willard, world's heavyweight champion prize fighter, is again to become a proud papa. The fifth addition to the Willard family was expected March 15 and now the doctor says the stork will arrive this week. Jess already has three girls and a boy.

Friends of the Willard family hinted today that Willard's recent sickness was something of a bluff, that he was expecting the stork, didn't want to be away when it happened, and was too bashful to take the public into his confidence.

ROOKIES AND REGULARS

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Fielder Jones hit the warpath today. Recently Hughie Jennings announced the Browns as a bogus lot of athletes. Until today Jones was quiet. The rain yesterday put him on edge. Today he ordered the slaughter of Detroit's Tigers throughout the season. After today's game here the Browns go to Little Rock.

HOUSTON, Tex.—Miller Huggins' Cardinals went through a light workout as soon as they hit this town today. After two games with the locals the St. Louis contingent will hike for home. The second squad dropped off at Denison for a game there.

TAMPA, Fla.—A bush league umpire threw a scare into the great Heinie Zim here yesterday. His name's Fromherz. When Zim pounded up to him to kick on a decision. Fromherz said: "Git" and reached for his handkerchief. Heinie thought he was reaching for a gun and moved.

MINERAL SPRINGS, Ark.—It looks like the White Sox would be hitless wonders again this year. They tied the knot in the tail of the Fort Worth club 7 to 4, though out-hit by five blows.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—Alva Williams, the unfortunate who has been receiving Walter Johnson's delivery with his winter hands, is to get a day's rest.

MIAMI, Fla.—Johnny Evers was spiked, Arthur Nehf stricken, and Umpire Cleary driven from the field in ridicule as the Braves and Seminoles fought a tie game, 4 to 4.

WAXAHACHIE, Tex.—Frankie Fuller, a Detroit boy, was the shining light in the 7 to 2 Tiger victory over Dallas yesterday. He had a perfect day at bat.

WILLARD SAYS HE'S ON EDGE FOR FIGHT MORAN GOOD GROUCH

Corbett Looks the Champion Over and Predicts He Will Have No Trouble with Frank

NEW YORK, March 21.—Jess Willard announced himself as on "edge" today for his ten round fight with Frank Moran Saturday night. The champion went eight hard rounds with his sparring partner yesterday afternoon and planned a brisk workout for today, with enough exercise to keep him in trim. He will be content for the rest of the week with comparatively light work.

Moran expected to put in a lively session this afternoon. Everyone in Frank's camp is delighted with his condition. No one but a man who is ready to knock out a champion and take the crown unto himself could grouch so successfully as does Moran, declare his followers.

The training camps of both fighters are now jammed daily by "experts" who size them up and then drop words of wisdom in expressing their opinions. Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion, says, Willard is as good, if not better than the big men who held the title before him. He predicted that Moran can stay ten rounds with him only on a fluke.

Corbett has not been a howling success at picking winners in the past, so Moran's crowd expressed complete satisfaction with his verdict on Willard.

Freddie Welsh says Willard completely outclasses Moran and can win whenever he pleases.

COULON PULLS FOR JESS

CHICAGO, March 21.—Johnny Coulon ex-bantam champion, believes that Jess Willard will defeat Frank Moran when the two clash in New York Saturday night. He said so today.

BARRY'S KNIGHTS LEAD IN A. B. C.

TOLEDO, O., March 21.—Commodore Barry's Knights of Columbus team of Chicago, winner of the A. B. C. championship in Peoria in 1915, is in line for another title today. The Chicagoans shot 2,905 for first place among the five-men teams here last night. Dopesters predict the mark will stick.
